

LEGAL RESEARCH CORNER

Colorado Joint Legislative Library: Background, Resources, and Services

by Molly Otto and Gay E. Roesch

This article is an overview of the Colorado Legislative Council (Legislative Council) and the Joint Legislative Library (Legislative Library). It presents a brief history of the Legislative Council and the Legislative Library; provides information about print and electronic resources and databases available in the Legislative Library, as well as available methods for accessing legislative records; and discusses how to make audio recordings of legislative proceedings.<sup>1</sup>

Overview of the Legislative Council

The Legislative Council was created in 1953 by the passage of Senate Bill 18,<sup>2</sup> which is codified at CRS §§ 2-3-301 to -311. CRS § 2-3-301(1) states that the Legislative Council is an executive committee with the following members: nine senators, nine representatives, the Speaker of the Colorado House of Representatives (House), the President of the Colorado State Senate (Senate), and the majority and minority leaders of both bodies. Five staff agencies serve the Legislative Council executive committee, the Colorado General Assembly, and the public. Four of the agencies are statutory agencies, and one is a non-statutory agency.<sup>3</sup> The agencies are staffed with nonpartisan research and institutional support personnel whose purpose is to furnish nonpartisan, unbiased, accurate, and timely research and information to fulfill the institutional needs of the General Assembly and its constituents.<sup>4</sup> Staff members do not provide legal advice or legal opinions.

Development of the Legislative Library

The Legislative Library is one of the support services staff sections in the Office of Legislative Policy Research. The library was started in 1973 and has grown from a single library shelf to more than 8,000 print and electronic resources. The library's primary mission is to supply nonpartisan library services and resources to members of the General Assembly and their staff; local, state, and federal agencies; and members of the public. Researchers from the private and public sectors may use the resources in the library only, because the collection does not circulate outside the building. (The Appendix at the end of this article provides a listing of Legislative Library resources. See table 1 for print resources; table 2 for Internet resources; and table 3 for additional legislative websites.)

The library is staffed by two full-time professional librarians, who assist with reference and research questions.<sup>5</sup> It is located in the basement of the State Capitol building, near the Colorado State Archives, the Supreme Court Library, the State Publications Library, the Colorado Historical Society, and the Denver Public Library. As a result, library staff can quickly locate and obtain electronic or hard copy resources not available in the Legislative Library collection.

Charles R. McCarthy, “the father of the special library movement,”<sup>6</sup> recognized the importance of the legislative libraries. Through his association with the Wisconsin Progressive Movement, he promoted legislative reference services as a means of improving legislation and government.<sup>7</sup> As a result, every state currently has a legislative library, and the Legislative Research Librarians staff section is part of the National Conference of State Legislatures.

Colorado Legislator History In-House Database

One unique resource that the Legislative Library staff has developed and maintains is the Colorado Legislator History in-house database. This database is a legislative profile of all members who have served in the Colorado General Assembly, from territorial days through the current session. Each entry includes the member’s name, district, and party; the number of years the member has served in the House and/or Senate; legislative leadership positions the member has held; and the member’s committee membership.

The database can be a helpful resource for individuals looking for the legislative background on a member of the General Assembly; General Assembly members who need a summary of their legislative activity; or individuals conducting genealogical research. Currently the database is only accessible in-house. However, the Office of Legislative Information Services and the Legislative Council Computer Support staff are designing a public website with this information, which soon will be available.<sup>8</sup>

Audio CDs of Bill Testimony and Legislative History Research

Legislative researchers can use another distinct library resource as a tool to determine legislative intent. Researchers can listen to and create audio CDs of committee bill testimony and House and Senate proceedings from 2002 through the current legislative session, which are electronically stored in the library.

Library staff can instruct researchers in locating hearings and creating CDs. Users need to bring their own CDs to make recordings and should know the bill number, hearing date, and committee location, if possible. This information is located on the Colorado General Assembly website.<sup>9</sup> The “history” link tracks the legislative progress of a bill, and includes the committee assignments and hearing dates for each bill. The “committee” link includes committee and bill summaries, the time and location of the committee hearing, the names of persons testifying, and a summary of their position on a bill. Interested persons also may listen to live audio proceedings of the current legislative session by accessing the “audio broadcasts of current proceedings.”

Conclusion

The Legislative Library staff assists researchers on the local, state, national, and international levels with locating and using significant and unique resources instrumental in legislative research. These print and electronic resources are useful in examining and clarifying the history, development, and enactment of legislation.
